

Grants in 2010

The Battle River Community Foundation was able to grant a total of $117,535 to community projects during 2010. Grants given in 2010 include:

Grants from Community Fund:

The Community Fund is an undesignated fund that gives responsibility for selecting grant recipients to the Battle River Community Foundation grants committee and board. This is the most flexible fund, making it possible for the Foundation to respond to emerging charitable needs, as well as supporting areas of philanthropy that include health, education, arts, the environment, and social services. Donors who contribute $10,000 or more may establish funds within the Community Fund in the name of their choosing.
